Troops Dare Death To Save 'Old Glory'

Four Are Cited In 2d Rescue On Corregidor

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—For the second time, men of Corregidor's dauntless garrison have braved heavy enemy fire to restore their shot-down flag atop the 100-foot pole on the fortress island in Manila bay.

The second incident—similar to one of April 18—was reported by the War Department today in a communique which said also that severe damage was inflicted on docks and military installations at Rangoon, base for the Japanese invasion of Burma, by the American air raid of last Wednesday.

(The raid, by heavy bombers based in India, had been reported previously in Associated Press dispatches from New Delhi.)

Four were cited for parts in the Corregidor incident.

Captain Arthur E. Huff, of St. Louis, Mo., and three enlisted men who risked their lives to restore the colors to their position atop the flagpole, were awarded the Silver Star decoration for gallantry in action by Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright.

They braved both shells and bombs from several dive bombers in the exploit.

The three enlisted men were Corporal Louis A. Roark, Gypsum, Kan.; Private First Class Roy O. Bailey, Kansas City, Mo.; and Private Harley H. Leard, Durant, Oklahoma.

Denmark Bombed; RAF Drive Pushed

LONDON, May 3.—(AP)—Air-raid ranging over Copenhagen, capital of German-occupied Denmark, dropped bombs on that city and caused anti-aircraft batteries in Denmark to fire for 45 minutes last night, it was reported today.

Meanwhile, the RAF kept up its aerial offensive against northern France with morning and afternoon forays. It was authoritatively stated that three German fighter planes were destroyed over northern France.

The Copenhagen report was contained in a Reuters dispatch from Stockholm quoting Svenska Dagbladet. The dispatch said the explosions of anti-aircraft fire were heard 18 miles into Sweden.

The Vichy radio reported that British warplanes swept across Denmark during the night and drew sharp anti-aircraft fire. It said air-raid alarms were set off in Copenhagen, but three reports of bombs on Danish territory.

(There were indications from continental sources that British bombers flew wide over the continent last night, from the Baltic to Italy, but the British Air Ministry made no announcement of such widespread raiding.)

Two bombers were acknowledged missing.

The Air Ministry reported that British bombers laid out in enemy waters during the night and coastal command planes bombed and set on fire a large tanker off Alesund, Norway. These planes also were said to have hit and set on fire a medium-sized merchant vessel.

The Air Ministry, summing up completely under control until about 10 a. m.

Despite billowing clouds of thick, choking smoke which cast a pall over the city, firemen checked and apparently completely extinguished the fire about 3:30 a. m.

About 6 a. m., however, a new blaze was discovered between the second and third floors by several members of the fire department who had been brought back to the scene for a final checkup.

Before fire trucks with additional hose and equipment could be returned to the scene, the entire third floor of the structure, which housed the repair shop of Tripple Furniture Company, was ablaze.

Gaining headway steadily, the flames raged unchecked for three hours.

Several firemen narrowly escaped serious injury when a portion of the front wall collapsed, hurling several tons of brick and debris to the pavement.

A ladder, from which a stream of water had been played through a third-story window, had been removed from the structure only a few seconds before the wall collapsed.

One volunteer fireman, Joe Divine, a soldier from Camp Wheeler, Macon, who was visiting in the city, was overcome by smoke and admitted to Baldwin Memorial hospital. He was released Sunday afternoon.

Alton Brooks, member of the city fire department, and an unidentified member of the State Hospital crew also suffered injuries. Brooks received a severely

Nazi Warships Out of Action, British Reveal

LONDON, May 3.—(AP)—The elusive German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen are definitely out of action and must undergo extensive repairs, the British announced officially today. A heavy blow has thus been dealt to German-Italian-Japanese hopes for a gigantic, simultaneous worldwide attack against the fleets of the United Nations.

Breaking the very great reserve they had shown since the three ships challenged the British navy by sailing through the English channel in February, the admiralty and the Royal Air Force said the Nazi warships had been grievously hurt by torpedo and bombing attacks in the channel fight, by mines laid by British planes and by British submarine action.

The joint announcement after the previous reserve was taken to indicate that knowledge of the damage was absolutely certain and that the ships would not see action for a long time.

Prinz Eugen Grounded.

Instead of the formidable armada of six powerful warships ready for a smash at the British and United States fleets, Adolf Hitler now has, according to the best available reports, only three warships at Trondheim, occupied Norwegian port, ready for a fight.

These are the battleship Tirpitz, 35,000 tons, the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer, 10,000 tons, and the Admiral Hipper, sister-ship of the Prinz Eugen.

The official announcement said the Gneisenau was located at Gdynia, former Polish port, the Scharnhorst still is in the dockyard at Kiel, German naval base which the RAF has pounded extremely hard, and the Prinz Eugen is at Trondheim.

Reports from Norwegian sources said the Prinz Eugen had been grounded by the stern to keep her afloat.

In brief, the British gave this account of what happened to the three ships after they dashed from Brest on February 11:

"The trio, object of many raids by the RAF during their stay in the occupied French port, sailed in an effort to concentrate with other German surface ships at Trondheim."

On February 14 the Germans announced that the battleships had left their base on the Atlantic supply route for "further operation duties" but over two months later reconnaissance by the RAF has established that both the powerful ships are still in dockyard hands.

"The Gneisenau is severely damaged along 'the whole length of her fore-castle and needs extensive repairs.'"

In addition to damage suffered during the attempted concentration in the channel battle in February, it is probable "that further damage was caused by mines laid by our aircraft."

Additional Blows Probable.

"It also seems probable that both the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau received additional damage between February 25 and February 28 during our bombing raids on the dockyard at Kiel. During these raids a liner used as a naval depot ship was also set on fire."

The Prinz Eugen made it safely to Germany but later, on her way to Trondheim, was attacked off Kristiansund, Norway, by the submarine Trident.

"Though not sunk, it was evident that she was severely damaged. Reconnaissance has also shown that though she did reach Trondheim, the after part of this enemy cruiser needs very considerable repair."

The knocking out of three of Hitler's most powerful ships threw a monkey wrench into any plans he might have had to put his battlefleet into the north Atlantic in an attack on the Allied supply line to northern Russia.

Many naval experts have been expecting Hitler, Mussolini and Premier General Hideki Tojo to order their combined naval forces into action simultaneously this spring in a move co-ordinated with a German land attack in Russia.

10 Face Trial Today; Evans May Be First

Ten men alleged to have conspired to loot the state of Georgia during the administration of former Governor Rivers are scheduled to go on trial in Fulton superior court today.

Preliminary skirmishes indicated Solicitor General Boykin and Special Prosecutor James A. Branch have it in mind to begin their attack with the prosecution of Hiram W. Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan.

Evans has asked for a continuance of his case on grounds he is now busy building five emergency hospitals for the federal government and one of his attorneys, Hal Lindsey, is defending John W. Greer, also indicted in the state cases, in federal court.

In opposing a continuance, the state is expected to contend Evans has three other attorneys, William Schley Howard, Morgan Belser and H. A. Allen.

The case against Evans involves sale of asphalt to the state during the Rivers regime. Other defendants whose cases have been set for today are former Governor Rivers, O. G. Glover, J. G. (Bugs) Glover, George C. Blount, W. W. Willis, D. B. Blalock, W. F. Scott, Hubert Smith and John W. Greer.

He had been in the Army for 22 years, having enlisted soon after the Armistice in 1918. He was assigned to a "clean up" crew which was sent to France after the war. He spent 18 months in France and also was in Belgium and in Germany for a while.

In addition to his mother, his brother, Gerald Brand, lives at the Bankhead avenue address.

The first casualty list to be issued by the War Department contained the names of 30 officers and 91 enlisted men from 10 states and the District of Columbia.

The other Georgians were: Walter A. Corbett, son of J. R. Corbett, of Route 2, Homerville; Leo E. Herrington, son of Harry Herrington, of R. F. D. 3, Hazlehurst; Dewey W. Jordan, son of Mrs. Murtle Jordan, of Route 2, Quitman; Emory G. Lasseter, son of Mrs. Mary Lasseter, of Route 1, Nashville; Robert L. Palmer, son of Claude L. Palmer, of R. F. D. 5, Cleveland; and Clifford Wilson, son of Vesta Wilson, of Route 2, Fairmount.

Four Destroyers Slide Down Ways

KEARNY, N. J., May 3.—(AP)—Four slim destroyers slid down the ways in clocklike precision today in a mass launching claimed by Governor Charles Edison as "the equivalent of a splendid naval victory."

The sleek fighting ships knifed into the waters of the Hackensack river to cheers of a small crowd witnessing the impressive launchings at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company yards under wartime restrictions.

Governor Edison, former Secretary of the Navy, warned, however, that despite the remarkable feat of four ships hitting the water in less than an hour, "we still are not building ships at the rate we must attain to win this war."

Rescue crews from the Pendleton Army air base, from where the Boeing B-17 plane had taken off on a training flight, were directed to the scene by Wallace, and found Sergeant John H. Starr, Littleton, Mass., unconscious and in a critical condition from spinal injuries.

Giant Encirclement Menaces Defenders; Mandalay in Ruins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, May 3.—The ashes of devastated Mandalay were held by the onrushing Japanese tonight as their mechanized spearheads pushed north toward China and west toward India in a great encircling move of annihilation against the weary, outnumbered Chinese and British defenders of Burma.

The Japanese thrust northward from Lashio carried them within 30 miles of China's Yunnan province, a Chungking communique said. Fierce fighting with heavy losses on both sides was in progress at Kweichien, 58 miles from Lashio.

The Chinese high command said the enemy pushed on to Mandalay after investing the railway town of Kyaukse, 35 miles south, on April 30.

Savage Fighting Reported.

A Chungking communique from the forces commanded by Lieutenant Joseph W. Stilwell, U. S. A., said the Japanese entered the Kipling city Friday and that savage fighting and great confusion raged in the rubble of the former capital of Burmese kings.

The British account issued at New Delhi said vaguely that Chinese troops "are on both sides of the (Irrawaddy) river in the vicinity of Mandalay" but authoritative military quarters declined "it is apparent the Japanese control the Mandalay-Lashio road" and that the Allied position was "very mucky indeed."

The exultant Japanese filled the air with radio accounts of the Burmese triumphs and said pado-da-studded Mandalay was a destroyed city "burned to the ground."

"Not Even a Dog Seen."

"Smoldering ruins appear to spread for miles and miles," a Domei correspondent broadcast, "not even a dog could be seen in the streets."

The Japanese attested to the thoroughness of the British scorched earth policy by saying most steel bridges into the city were heaps of tangled ruin.

More ominously, the keynote of all the Japanese boasts was that "Mandalay had become an advance base for an attack on India." The shambles of Mandalay lie 200 miles across tortuous mountain country from the border of the great subcontinent of India, where the dominant political party—the All-India Congress—admonished the 390,000,000 Indians yesterday to resist any invaders with "non-violent non-cooperation."

Harass Japanese Rear.

The Chinese communique said the Japanese continued to drive northward from Lashio, railroad to the Burma road but that Chinese forces holding Taunggyi, 170 miles to the southwest were continuing to harass the Japanese communication line and rear.

There was a faint and desperate hope that these forces, pocketed between the Sittang and Salween rivers, might exert sufficient pressure to isolate the more advanced Japanese. However, they appeared only strong enough to conduct guerrilla warfare in which they are well schooled.

Competent London military quarters said the Japanese apparently had thrown out two powerful columns, one from the Lashio

No Change Seen In Weather Here

No change from the warm, rather sultry weather of the past week is expected today, according to the weatherman.

Yesterday's temperature extremes were 63 and 86 degrees.

TACOMA, Wash., May 3.—(AP)—Two officers and one enlisted man were killed and another seriously injured late today in the crash of an Army bomber at the nearby McChord Field air base. The bomber was on a routine training flight.

McChord Field headquarters listed the dead as:

First Lieutenant William E. Comber, pilot, Frankfort, Pa.

Second Lieutenant Adolph T. Frerich, co-pilot, Fairfax, Mo.

Corporal Frank W. Edwin, San Benito, Texas.

Seriously injured although expected to recover was Sergeant R. T. Correll, Perryton, Texas.

10-Hour Blaze Destroys Office Building, Perils Milledgeville

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 3.

A stubborn smoldering blaze which resisted the combined efforts of municipal and State Hospital fire departments for more than 10 hours destroyed the Doctors' building on Hancock street Sunday after threatening the entire business district.

The blaze, most spectacular in the city since the old state capitol building was destroyed little more than a year ago, resulted in damage estimated at $100,000.

The building, constructed in 1903, was one of the city's largest. It housed the Milledgeville Daily Times, Tripple Furniture Company, Georgia Natural Gas Company and the offices of Dr. D. T. Turner and Dr. Charles Zattau, dentists.

The blaze was discovered about 12:15 a. m. and was not brought completely under control until about 10 a. m.

Despite billowing clouds of thick, choking smoke which cast a pall over the city, firemen checked and apparently completely extinguished the fire about 3:30 a. m.

About 6 a. m., however, a new blaze was discovered between the second and third floors by several members of the fire department who had been brought back to the scene for a final checkup.

F.D.R. Expected To Ask 35 Billions

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—Informed legislators said today they expected a presidential request for approximately $35,000,000,000 for the War Department to be placed before Congress within the next week or 10 days.

The amount—the largest single appropriation request in history—would bring to more than $180,000,000,000 the total appropriations and contract authorizations made for military purposes in the past two years.

The new appropriation would represent a revision of pre-Pearl Harbor estimates of War Department needs through the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943.

General Brereton shared the program with General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander in India, who said the presence of the American Air Force in this country "is to us and to this country evidence of the determination of the American people to stand side by side with this and other Allied peoples wherever the enemy is to be met and is a guarantee of final success."

Americans in Java. General Wavell disclosed that a United States artillery regiment, composed mostly of Texans, had served in Java.

"I particularly welcome this opportunity to pay tribute to the fine work which was done and the great gallantry shown under the most difficult conditions by the United States Air Force under Major General Lewis H. Brereton's command in Java," he said.

"Their exploits won our wholehearted admiration."

"I was also greatly impressed by the bearing of the artillery regiment, mainly from Texas, which I saw in Java."

"I share most warmly the pleasure which General Brereton has expressed at our serving together in India."

General Wavell said every effort was being made to look after United States troops and to make them welcome. He concluded, "We shall work with them in wholehearted endeavor toward our common end—early and complete victory."

The American commander told the people back home "You must realize that here there can be no question of divided effort or difference of viewpoint."

"Your soldiers are happy here," he said, "but are very anxious to finish this job and come home."

"Your United States Air Force in India has been in action against the enemy since the beginning of April."

"In close collaboration with the RAF we attacked successfully enemy warships and transports threatening Burma and the shores of India."

Wavell Commanded. "We have struck repeatedly at the harbor, docks and warehouses at Rangoon, which the Japanese must use to reinforce and supply their army in Burma. We stand ready to defend the shores of India."

Brereton paid high tribute to Wavell, declaring "There is no commander with whom I'd rather serve."

Every possible aid is being given to facilitate operations in India, he said.

"This is a team—British, American and Indian—trained together in battle," the general added, "and working hand and hand to fulfill our mission."

American forces have been welcomed "in a way to make you heart warm," Brereton said, but reminded the homefolk to remember that "letters sometimes seem even more important than ammunition."

Latin Volunteer Legion Proposed

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Hugo Fernandez Articulo, Uruguayan philosophy professor, today urged that a Latin-American expeditionary force of a half million volunteers be formed to fight under the command of the United Nations and declared that the governments of Latin-American countries would not have the slightest difficulty in mobilizing such a force.

Asserting that "it will be too late if Latin-America waits until it is attacked by the Axis forces," the Montevideo educator said in a statement:

"Aside from the military advantages of an LAEF, a voluntary move of this type will have tremendous reverberations in Europe and Asia."

591 Firms, Individuals Added to U. S. Blacklist

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—The State Department tonight announced the addition of 591 firms and individuals in Latin America and European neutral countries to the United States blacklist.

The additions include 477 firms and individuals in the other republics and 114 in Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

At the same time 25 firms and individuals in Latin America and 18 in European neutrals were removed from the list.

All firms and individuals placed on the blacklist are deemed to be acting in the interest of the enemy and United States citizens are forbidden to trade with them.

U. S. Soldiers Learning How To Outdo Dirty Tactics of Foe

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., May 3.—(AP)—Bare-handed fighting tactics that out-commando the Commandos and make Japanese jujitsu tactics a pleasant outdoor sport by comparison are being taught a picked group of athletic and recreation officers at an Army school here.

Instructor in this new science of fighting, which is neither jujitsu nor its American version "Judo," is Dr. Francois D'Eliscu, a muscular little college professor who at 47 can handle any of the 117 former college athletes in his class. The doctor's only weapon is a five-foot length of sash cord which he terms his "hog-tie." In use it is looped around an enemy's knees just after planting a boot in his midsection. When he is doubled up and gasping Dr. D'Eliscu quickly draws the loose end around his opponent's neck, tying them in front.

Firm Noose. Doubled up, the victim has a firm noose at his knees and a running noose at his throat. Either he strangles himself to death with his own struggles or his opponent hastens the process by sitting on his face and pushing forward on his knees.

D'Eliscu, possessor of several degrees and titles—he formerly taught as a professor at both Columbia and New York Universities—is the originator of this savage art, one of the most brutal forms of fighting since men graduated from their bare hands to clubs.

He hasn't a bit of use for boxing. "Boxing—bah!" he tells his class. "We Americans aim for the jaw, the nose, the cauliflower ear." "Swing your right elbow, like this, to crush his windpipe. Slap him with your other hand. Then follow through with a good left. (To Dr. D'Eliscu this means a left knee or foot to the abdomen.) Now only instant surgery can save his life." Men get hurt just practicing Dr.

Kentuckian In Tribute to Martha Berry

Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart Addresses Georgia Student Body.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MOUNT BERRY, May 3.—Paying a tribute to the inspired career of Martha Berry, founder and director of Berry College and Schools, Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, author and educator and founder of the Moonlight Schools of Kentucky, addressed the thousand student of Berry in chapel yesterday.

Mrs. Stewart told of her visit to Berry more than 20 years ago with Erwin A. Holt, of Burlington, N. C., a staunch supporter of both Mrs. Stewart's and Miss Berry's work. She described her tour of the campus to the little log house and board shanty that then housed the boys' school, which now has buildings valued at more than a million dollars.

Throughout the years since, Mrs. Stewart said, she occasionally returned to marvel at the progress Martha Berry was making in providing an education yearly for more than a thousand young people from all parts of the south. "I know of no one who has done more for Georgia and the south than Miss Berry," Mrs. Stewart asserted.

The annual May Day program of the schools was celebrated Saturday also, with a half holiday, students gathering on the college athletic field for a program of sports.

55-Piece Boys' High Band To March at Music Festival

By FRANK DRAKE.

The 55-piece military band of Boys' High school will perform a special marching exhibition Saturday night, May 9, in the fourth annual Constitution-sponsored Greater Atlanta Music Festival, which will present an entertaining evening of free fun at Georgia Tech's football stadium through the co-operation of the schools of this area and the United States Treasury.

The Treasury Department is sending Dorothy Lamour, the movies' "sarong" star, and Jety Parker, former world's champion drum majorette, to help launch the Fulton and DeKalb war bond pledge campaign on May 11, and both will make personal appearances on the festival program.

The Boys' High band, directed by R. J. Martin, is one of more than a score of musical organizations which will parade and maneuver over the Georgia Tech football field, beginning at 8 o'clock, in the biggest musical show in the south. This band, which has won honors in contests and public appearances, will also be a part of the gigantic 1,000-piece massed band that Paul Yoder, famous Chicago musician, will conduct at the event.

It will be led on the field by Frank Ward, drum major, who won second place in The Constitution's baton twirling contest last year and who will be competing in the contest this year for the title of Georgia champion.

Personnel of the Boys' High band follows:

Casualty Lists

On page one of The Constitution for Saturday there was published a letter from an unidentified soldier in the United States Army in Australia written in protest of the War Department's decision against making public lists of war casualties.

"I'd like to believe," he writes, "that if the Japs knock me off in Australia, the newspaper back home will announce the fact... at least one line, to inform the fellows back home..."

The reason given by the War Department for the failure to make public casualty lists is that it might "undermine the morale" of the American people.

What kind of stuff do they think Americans are made of? Has the War Department so little confidence in the moral strength and determination of the people of this country it believes we cannot withstand the personal tragedies of war?

Secrecy is hateful to the American people. Uncertainty about their loved ones, their neighbors, the boys who went to the school around the corner, is more dangerous to morale than the truth could possibly be.

We are not cowed slaves of some dictatorial government, to humbly do as we are told by some totalitarian autocrat, and to meekly accept just what news some bureaucrat sees fit to give us. There can be no information for the enemy, contained in a casualty list, he does not already know.

Contrary to the department's argument, publication of complete casualty lists, no matter how long, could only result in stiffening the morale of the folks back home and increasing their determination to bring the final victory as quickly as possible.

Some have complained of a lack of true realization, by the American people—some of them—of the actuality of the war. Nothing would bring it home quicker, than the sight of the casualty lists.

It was a surprise to one and all that judges in Germany had to ask for vacations. We had supposed justice, under indulgent Adolf, had two annual holidays of six months each.

Maritime Day

National Maritime Day is May 22. It was on that date in 1819 the steamer Savannah sailed from Savannah, Ga., on the first successful transoceanic voyage under steam power. By act of congress and by annual proclamation by the President, this day is annually designated to do particular honor to the men of the merchant marine, afloat and ashore.

In a very real sense the brunt of the war, on one important front, is being borne by the men of the merchant marine. They are the crews that man the tankers and other cargo ships that brave the submarine perils of the Atlantic. They are the men who undergo the experience of having a ship torpedoed and sunk under them about every fourth voyage. They are the men who nevertheless promptly go back to sea as crew of some other ship. They are the men who have carried the vital cargoes of food and war supplies, of materials and of fighting men to all the far corners of the war-engulfed world.

It is impossible to do these men too much honor. It takes courage of highest order to go to sea, nowadays, on a tanker which may, at any moment, become a blazing pyre of red hot steel.

Yet, upon these men depends the bringing of victory. Without them, we are lost. With them, their courage and their skill, we shall fight through to a triumphant end.

Remember the men and the lads who go down to the war-torn seas in ships on Maritime Day, May 22.

None of his countrymen love Laval, they say. It is a pleasure to welcome the old crowd back—the 50 million Frenchmen who can't be wrong.

Get Your Ration Book

Beginning today modern Americans will experience, for the first time, the necessity of a ration book for the purchase of an essential food commodity.

Registration and issuance of sugar ration books is to be held at the schools for the four days, beginning today and continuing through Thursday. Schools will have a holiday today, so that teachers and other registrars may devote all time to issuance of the sugar ration books. All who can be asked to register today.

For the remaining three days of the registration period, the registration will take place between 3 and 6 o'clock in the afternoons.

From now on no one can buy any sugar without a ration book. Each individual is allowed one-half pound per week. The head of a family may secure the ration books for each member of that family, but not for servants.

There will be few possessions more valuable to the individual than their ration book. So, be sure to register this week, today if possible. If you don't—no sugar for you.

Twilight of the Gods

It has been said that Adolf Hitler spends his spare time brightening the gloomy outlook with the music of Richard Wagner. There is, however, one composition by the great German composer which would bring little sunshine into the life of Der Fuehrer, even if he listened to it on purpose, which would scarcely be the case, or if he knew it existed.

Over a century ago, long before the self-assumed god-like characteristics of the composite Nazi soul had been revealed to the world, Wagner wrote a stirring overture and dedicated it to the British people, whom he greatly admired. It was based on a theme that never fails to stir the blood in every British vein—and clog the arteries of every German—the patriotic air "Rule, Britannia."

One day recently, by way of raising the Nazi blood pressure a notch higher, the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Polish-born Artur Rodzinski, broadcast the overture. The Columbia broadcasting system sent it out on short-wave, and the British, in turn, re-broadcast it to the "fatherland" for all to hear, as well as to Nazi-occupied countries.

To give the broadcast an authentic flavor, the composer's granddaughter, Friedelind, introduced the number. "Wagner wrote it," she explained, "because he loved and admired the spirit of the British people. But he didn't write a 'Germania' to glorify the German spirit. He wrote the 'Twilight of the Gods'..."

Gotterdammerung! It is to be hoped Der Fuehrer was tuned in on his favorite station!

What the ship repairers of New York harbor appear to need is a cold acetylene torch.

There is an old saying to the effect that you don't have to get hit on the head with a hammer to know that it hurts. Yet the isolationists—and that goes for this brand of thinking all over the world—seem not to grasp this simple truth. Too often such persons have to have a bomb dropped on them to know their enemies are on the loose, enemies who mean to kill them just as surely as two and two make four.

An example of this came in the news recently out of London, telling how a sleepy, remote village in the Berwyn mountains of Wales has just gone to war officially with Germany—more than two and a half years after the rest of Great Britain. The village, deep in the heart of the mountains, has been strongly nationalist for a long time. The villagers speak Welsh and the war was a foreign one declared by the English in London. Thus the villagers would have none of it.

Then the bombers came. A stick of bombs dropped on a mountain near the town. Windows of many houses were blown in. Slates flew from the roofs and the roof of the village chapel was riddled. The elders held a meeting and made a formal declaration of war. Now all the inhabitants of the village feel a personal responsibility to beat Hitler.

Because he laughed at a time like this, the psychologist concluded the Duce was crazy. But he may have been thinking of something else.

Those who have expressed a willingness to sacrifice in every way possible in order to destroy totalitarian powers in the world have in many instances been doing some idle talk. They really don't know or appreciate what sacrifices mean. No doubt, they are willing to sacrifice their morning's Coca-Cola, have sugar rationed, and go to bed earlier and get up earlier, but we are wondering what the reaction will be when they are called on to actually do some sacrificing.

Before this war is won there will be many changes in our present way of life. Many old prized privileges will have to be sacrificed. Many businessmen will find it necessary to go out of business and will be asked to serve their government in an entirely different work.

Foregoing habits of a lifetime will be difficult and it is going to be interesting to see how some people can take it. We are mighty soft and set in our ways and can become awfully cantankerous when asked to change. Our sacrificing has hardly begun, and we might as well get prepared for very radical changes. To make those sacrifices gracefully is desirable, but make them we must.

Individuals today are of small account. It really doesn't matter, to me, to any one of us, as individuals. All that matters is

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

NOT TO REPEAT ERROR WASHINGTON, May 3.—It is all very premature at this time, but sources close to the White House say there is absolutely no chance of President Roosevelt making the same mistake as did Woodrow Wilson in arranging details of the official peace mission after winning the war.

Whatever the cost, Mr. Roosevelt is fully confident of the ability of the United Nations winning the present conflict ultimately. Holding that conviction, he naturally has been unable to escape some thoughts of the final peace. One of these has turned on the futility of winning the war if we cannot win the peace that follows.

President Wilson was one of the most brilliant scholars ever to occupy the White House. Yet historians are agreed that he had a certain deficiency in evaluating practical political considerations. Thus in setting up the American Peace Mission which assisted in working out all the intricate details of the Treaty of Versailles he omitted recognition of the very body—the United States senate—which later was to be called upon to ratify what was done.

By virtue of the omission the senate rejected the League of Nations and other fruits of the Treaty of Versailles. Had Mr. Wilson taken to Paris with him a representative group of senators, all of his post-war troubles might have been eliminated. Also much of the present bloody visitation that again has been thrust on the world.

Having witnessed the mistakes of the Wilson administration there is little danger of Mr. Roosevelt repeating them under his own. Some of his intimates who have discussed the subject with him in recent days left with the impression that he has a clear determination to give the senate full representation in the official peace mission whenever and wherever it meets. At the very minimum he is expected to name three members of the body which under the constitution is called upon to ratify by a two-thirds majority all foreign commitments made by the executive branch of the government.

IF IT ENDED TODAY In keeping with this present presidential attitude, if there were a sudden termination of the war today, it would seem to see Mr. Roosevelt include in the American Peace Delegation Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the majority leader; Senator Connally, of Texas, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Austin, of Vermont, one of the high-ranking Republican members of foreign relations. Conceivably the list might be extended to others in the senate, as well as to the house.

Mr. Roosevelt is too old a political fox to be caught in the same error twice. The whole subject would be utterly premature at this time when we have only been in the war for a matter of five months, except for the fact that it has been a subject of recent White House discussion. The place and conditions of the peace will not be given weighty consideration until the victory is in sight. Unless there is an internal German collapse in the meantime we are unable to look for this for a period of a year and a half to two years yet.

LOGICAL PLACES Washington and London at this remote stage of things seem to be the two most logical points for the peace conference. Paris, scene of the Versailles Treaty, would hardly be considered because of the German occupation of France. Moscow, capital of one of our great allies in the war, will probably be eliminated as too inaccessible.

Because this is more truly a world war than any previous conflict in history, the peace conference that will come with the end of present hostilities will undoubtedly be the most important, the most far-reaching, and most colorful convocation of its kind ever held before. The four dominant nations, of course, will be the United States, Britain, Russia and China. All of the others—or most of them—will be represented but in a secondary role. This will even be evident in the idealism and academic philosophy of Woodrow Wilson.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

"What Of It?" I was induced, the other evening, to visit a theater. The boss of the family wanted to see a picture which had been made from a novel she had read. It was a very successful novel. Included in the lists of five best sellers for many weeks on end, it had been a success, I myself, read it.

It proved to be an utterly boring picture, to my mind. There were long drawn scenes, sequential and long drawn, with absolutely nothing to get interested in. Faintly, I suspected there were some indications of what must have made the book the success it was. Just here and there, in the picture, there was a line or two of dialogue which hinted the theme of the book must have had to do with the passing of an era, of a type of personality which has faded from the American picture in these changing times.

But the hints were mighty, mighty faint. All the picture contained was a story about some young people and their matrimonial aspirations and achievements. The only suspense was who would marry who. There were long drawn scenes of mushy dialogue with no action whatsoever except an occasional sip at a glass of champagne or a certain number of kisses.

And the feeling through it all was, "Well, what of it?" Who cares whether he marries the home town girl or the gal from the big city? It is a matter utterly inconsequential to any normally intelligent person.

Or, perhaps the 17-year-old adolescents might get an emotional thrill in witnessing the screen osculation. But whoever said 17-year-old adolescents are intelligent?

Times Have Changed. I think such pictures illustrate one of the great weaknesses of the Hollywood output of so-called entertainment.

The world is in the throes of revolution. We are in a fight with outcome still uncertain, upon which rests our fate as free people or slaves for generations to come. Even if we win the present conflict there can be no doubt that the accustomed modes of our life will be tremendously changed.

Changes are coming, inevitably, that will alter the whole world perspective of human relations. And, knowing this, watching the story of the most crucial period in world history, as that history is made, how can we be interested in the little affairs of any individuals?

Individuals today are of small account. It really doesn't matter, to me, to any one of us, as individuals. All that matters is

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, May 3.—Mr. Sam Hobbs, Fourth Alabama House of Representatives, Washington.

Dear Sam: I am afraid you boys on that little subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee booted one the other day when you had before you old Joe Padway, the general counsel of the American Federation of Labor, and late mouthpiece for the rottenest group in the whole foul union racket, meaning the movie and theatrical mob when George Browne was the nominal president and "Willie Bluff, M. P., or master of prostitutes, was the actual head man.

Missed Chance You had a wonderful chance to rub old Joe's nose publicly in his own record but, instead, a committee of our national legislature sat there and let him tell you what laws to pass and what proposals to turn down.

Didn't you know Padway was G. C. for the Browne-Bluff thing? Sure he was, Sam. That's the guy who went out to their convention, or hoodlums' reunion, and told the saps what a wonderful human dynamo worthy president was when—very one knew Browne was just a big slob who kept himself pretty well bottled most of the time and that Willie the Mackrel was the real boss.

After Dumb George and Willie the Mackrel were convicted I called up Padway in Washington to ask him if he was now going to resign as general counsel of the union, and he took off into space screaming something awful because he had said he was the mouthpiece, but his objection boiled down to a fine distinction. He said he did not represent these burglars, but the union. But that is O. K. by me, because everybody knows by now that the proof is presented in the trial that Dumb George, Willie the Mack and Nick Dean, who also is away now doing eight years, were the union. They ran it as a racket and Browne hired Padway and when Joe spoke for the union he spoke for the Dumb George who spoke for Willie the Mack.

Maybe he will say he didn't know it was a racket, but Sam, everybody else did and if I had been a member of your committee I would have asked him how come a lawyer as smart as he is supposed to be could associate with such an outfit and get privy to its inner secrets, as a lawyer must, and still smell nothing. So even if you just say he was G. C. for the union, it is the same thing.

How About Scalise? You should have asked him about George Scalise, too, Sam. There was another Mack, and Padway once told me he got a thousand dollars from George for revising the constitution of the building service workers. I remarked that this constitution sounded like something that a bunch of kids might devise for a club in a tree house or cave under the title of the dirty dozen, for it was full of low-comedy ritual, and this touched off Joe on his professional vanity, for he boasted his gratitude for an endorsement of his appeal for a presidential pardon on an old score in which he went up for white slavery. Well, when I mentioned this endorsement of the Scalise petition Joe took off again and said he never did anything of the kind, but, Sam, I am telling you that he, himself, told me he had recommended this pardon for George, knowing exactly what the offense had been, but figuring, he said, that the man had gone straight for many years and deserved a break. I will face him down on that.

Criminal Racket That is another laugh, Sam. Gog and Magog straight for years! Why this union of his was just a raw criminal racket of a mob, and, anyway, if Scalise actually did need a new constitution, why didn't he go to Judge Oscar Nelson, of the superior court of Cook county, Illinois? Nelson tried to deny to me that he ever was counsel for the racket, but, Sam, I nailed him square when I dug up a union magazine in which Nelson sent cordial greetings and referred to the years in which he had served them as their counsel.

But the records in the Department of Justice should show who endorsed Scalise's petition, and I will make oath, moreover, that an attorney general of the United States told me that inasmuch as this petition was a public document he saw no reason not to let me know that not only Padway but Brother Will Green recommended favorable action.

It seems to me sort of like you boys weren't on your toes. It seems sort of like this would have been a fine chance to let the people know what sort of people these are who presume to speak for the whole honest, decent body of American workers and push out congress around in the name of "labor."

In the Arms of Spring Dear Father, forgive, that I lide and flit. When there is work to do—Then I am entranced by the dog-wood tree. With the sunlight spilling through. Forgive me when the mocking birds Enchant me with their songs—When their joyous, lilting melodies Prove a lure for me too strong. When the lily lifts a golden bloom Above the garden pool. O do not censure if I loiter, Seated upon a stool. When I rise wave their snowy flags And bid me come their way—O please be patient if I linger. Kneel at their feet and pray. I will do much better work—Work gaily—smile and sing—If I may rest a little while. Clipped to the arms of Spring. —PEARL RIDLEY GRUBBS.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

"THE THIRTEEN BUS" "When I have relatives up from the provinces," the sound authority said, "I always take them for a nice ride on the Thirteen Bus. You go right through London and can do all your sight-seeing without getting off... I've tried them all, and the Thirteen Bus is the best."

Vincent Sheean took that—and the Thirteen Bus—and used it to introduce his book, "Not Peace, But a Sword" (in 1938).

The Thirteen Bus goes through London, from Golders' Green through St. John's Wood, Regent's Park, Baker street, and into Oxford street and its heavy traffic. Selfridge's is there. Sheean, looking on from his bus-top, thought to himself:

"What would happen, I wonder, if I got off the bus now and went over to that white-haired woman who is looking into the shop window, and said to her: 'Madam, do you know anything about the Ebro?'"

"She would probably call the police. If by any chance she did not, and took the question for what it was, she would no doubt say: 'The Ebro? The Ebro. It's a river, isn't it? Somewhere in India, or is that the Ganges? No, I've got it. It's a river in Spain. Is that right?'"

"If I told her it was a river flowing down Oxford street she would be sure I was a lunatic..."

The bus went on, through the newspaper street of Fleet, through Threadneedle, through finance, mart and slum and came at last to London Bridge.

Sheean published this book in 1939, when our war still was relatively far away, but coming so surely that few could mistake it. He was one who saw it coming and kept saying so.

IN PEACHTREE STREET Well, the Ebro was flowing down Peachtree street, too. The Ebro was flowing down all the Main streets of all the towns of the world—

Down the big boulevards of Paris, of Moscow, of Copenhagen, of Stockholm, of Oslo, of Nashville, of New York, of Sauk Center, of Havana, of Port of Spain and Timbuctoo.

Down all the streets of the world, the Ebro was flowing. It was in Spain that the Fascist armies of Italy and Germany had their workout. It was there they tested men and machines, guns and planes, maneuvers and plans.

It was there, most important of all, they tested the integrity and the characters of the leaders of France and of England. And that was most important.

It was there they learned what they hoped they had learned in Ethiopia, except they couldn't be sure. And that was that England and France would let them alone if they believed that they, Germany and Italy, would take only a part of Spain and Ethiopia and perhaps Czechoslovakia and maybe a slice of Hungary or Rumania.

They learned there that they could get away with it, because the democracies of Europe were so bankrupt of character they would sell out and double cross if only by so doing they could save their own precious hides.

They learned that in Spain. And that's why the Ebro began to flow down Peachtree street and all the streets of all the towns of all the world.

TONIGHT AND TOMORROW NIGHT Tonight, of course, for Ambassador Joseph E. Davies speaks on Russia. He is author of "Mission to Moscow," the most informative book about the Russia of the past 10 years. He and his subject already have been discussed. You will want to hear him talk on Russia.

Tomorrow night Vincent Sheean and James R. Young will speak. I have read Mr. Young's book on Japan. He spent some 13 years in Japan and was thrown into a Japanese jail for a long span of time because he knew too much.

He and Sheean speak on the same evening. (All this at the Auditorium, for the Red Cross. Prices cheap, too.)

I am, however, an old Sheean fan. A good many years ago I picked up a book because of its queer title. It was called "Gog and Magog." I had never heard of the author, Vincent Sheean. I liked the book.

Since that time he has seen most of the world's fighting and dying. He wrote of the Riffs and of the French and Spanish fight there in "Personal History." (You will find some of "Gog and Magog" in that book, too.)

Since then he has written novels and books. He has seen the war in Spain, the war in France and in Europe generally. He has been back to England and to Oxford street, and perhaps to Thirteen Bus.

Sheean developed a profound distrust of the prime ministers, the dictators, the dignitaries, and a hatred of Fascism which all true persons must have.

He talks well and so does Mr. Young.

It's a good symposium for Atlanta. Especially when there is thrown in an afternoon session with Miss Marjorie Rawlings, author of "The Yearling" and "Cross Creek," to mention but two. Monday and Tuesday will be interesting days.

An Infected Finger Poisons the Whole Body If the Poison Isn't Released By ROBERT QUILLEN.

During the Civil War it was not uncommon for opposing troops to fraternize when their lines were close, and even, baffle their surplus supplies, such as coffee and tobacco. They felt no hatred. The people who cultivated a bitter and vengeful malice were the civilians back home—usually the ones who could not qualify as fighters.

Even in the World War there was some fraternizing on the western front. Even though soldiers are enemies, and dutifully they throw in an afternoon session with Miss Marjorie Rawlings, author of "The Yearling" and "Cross Creek," to mention but two. Monday and Tuesday will be interesting days.

The act of fighting relieves the system of poison. Though we have developed a veneer of civilization, and learned not to settle every argument with a club, our physical equipment remains that of primitive animals.

When we give way to wrath, our adrenals automatically speed up to give us extra energy for battle, and we must somehow work it off or it poisons us. Some people are made sick.

Of course the civilized thing is not to lose your temper in the first place, but having developed a rage and unwittingly asked nature for a dose of adrenal secretion, the only safe course is to work it off by violent physical action. Kick a chair if you don't mind seeming silly, or take a run around the block.

You have heard the saying: "Beware the wrath of a patient man." His patience is not a virtue. He controls his wrath, and it accumulates like steam pressure in a boiler without a safety valve, until it explodes.

The coward gives his wrath no outlet—not even the relief of wrathful words. He gives his resentment no release, and it festers within him, and humiliation increases its bitterness, and it turns into malice that never dies.

Grudges are products of cowardice—not always, of course, but as a rule. The most venomous hatred is that of the coward who was shamed by a better man who exposed his yellowness.

New words—and new meanings for many a familiar old word—will be found in the next unabridged dictionary.

"Jeep," I think, will be a new one, because until a year or so ago it stood only for Popeye's mysterious fortune-telling animal and my first dachshund who was named for Popeye's brute because she looked like him. But now it's an Army vehicle.

"Peep," of course, means "a slight or brief glance or look," according to Webster. But now it is also a first cousin of the Army jeep.

"Freezing" has lost its old meaning in May—except perhaps for the lads in Iceland. But merchants have found out what it means now—fixing the price of a commodity at what it is today or what it was a month ago. To prevent scarcity of the article from boosting prices sky high.

"Ceiling" is another word with a new meaning—two new meanings. If an aviation radio reports "ceiling 900 feet" it means that there are clouds at that level and the pilot must fly under them or break through them, perhaps to bright skies above.

Even more recent is "ceiling" applied to wages and prices. It means that a maximum beyond which you mustn't go. "Floor," is exactly the reverse. The minimum below which you must not fix wages or prices. "Peg," too, has a new meaning. Instead of a stake to drive into the earth it means "hold it right there," as applied to prices.

All this is a federal government vocabulary. Which reminds me that it's been a long time since I heard some fervid orator hotly defending the principle of state's right.

One Boss Is Better

I'm a great believer in the right of a sovereign state to run its own affairs, no matter how badly. In normal times. But not now.

All those orders about prices and wages and rationing and restricting come from Washington. And properly so. That's a wartime necessity. Even with this authority we read of bickering and dissension and conflicting state-ments from different federal de-partments. Leon Henderson, or-ders gasoline rationing. Ickes de-clares there's no need for it.

That's bad. But could you im-agine this nation functioning with every governor and every state legislature running things ac-cording to their own ideas? Lord save us from that!

We Georgians can take it and like it—as long as Illinois and Massachusetts get the same medi-cine. But it would be pretty tough if Georgia's sugar were ra-tioned while Tennesseans could make their coffee taste like mo-jasses.

Yes, I know Georgia's gasoline is to be restricted, because she is one of the coastal states, while Alabamans can keep on driving—while their tires hold out. It doesn't seem to be quite justified, but I'm here to take orders, re-serving a free man's inalienable right to growl and cuss. But I'm not going to do my growling and cussing in public, where it might spread. In fact, I think I'll just take things as they come. The big shots in Washington know more than I do.

One Lump, Please

Sugar rationing starts today. All over the nation. In the school-houses. Gosh, won't the school-houses look like the front of a de-partment store on bargain day!

The housewives will get war ra-tion books, with coupons, each standing for one "unit," which later may be applied to other foods than sugar, if the govern-ment finds it necessary to limit sales of meat or other commodi-ties.

Folk with a sweet tooth, accus-tomed to cake and pie and pud-ding, are going to suffer acute pangings for a while. They will be hit by the first domestic horror of the war. But it will be good for them. I can visualize Dad's pants being taken up two inches at what he calls his waistline. I can see Aunt Maggie easing her-self into an armchair without the use of a shoe horn.

We've got to take it, so we might as well take it with a grin. We're likely to have to take a darn sight worse before we're through and it's best to get used to it.

Food item says that in a turkey most of the vitamins are in the giblets, but when I eat turkey I want turkey and you can have the vitamins. How about another slice of the white meat, mother?

I'm not so much alarmed over gasoline rationing as I was. Bill for our car's April gasoline has just arrived. I had purchased exactly ten gallons. But I didn't get around much.

Department of Commerce an-xious to guide small communities toward public service work, has issued a booklet, free for the ask-ing, entitled "Small Town Man-ual." Trouble with that is no-body has ever found anybody who would admit his home place is a small town.

Construction In South Sets All-Time Mark

Contract Awards During April Reach Total of $496,651,000.

BALTIMORE, May 3.—(AP)—Construction contract awards an-nounced in April for the southern states totaled $496,651,000, a new record for one month, the Manu-facturers Record announced to-day.

Fears that industry would be se-riously affected by the war pro-duction order restricting building were at least temporarily dispelled by the letting of numerous con-tracts by the War Department, the Record said.

Tremendous increases in gov-ernment-sponsored industrial, military and other projects sky-rocketed the April figure to $62,-000,000 ahead of the former all-time monthly peak reached in Au-gust, 1941.

'Enemy' Troops Seize Houses Of Parliament

Mock Battle Goes To In-vaders by Referee's Decision.

LONDON, May 3.—(AP)—The houses of parliament, the seat of Britain's government, were in the hands of "enemy parachute troops" tonight—after a two-day battle—according to the rule of a military referee.

In a realistic invasion test with blank ammunition, fireworks and smoke pots, peers, commoners, of the press gallery were routed by 1,500 British soldiers imper-soning German parachute troops after a struggle through the miles of corridors of the historic build-ings.

The invaders stormed Westmin-ster palace under cover of a smoke screen and gained a bridgehead in spite of the heavy fire of the de-fenders.

Frequent hand-to-hand encoun-ters, in which peers grappled with privates, occurred in the mock fight which extended over several blocks of the Westminster area. Fashionable Park lane, Hyde Park and St. James Park were the scenes of fierce "guerrilla battles," with the action particularly heavy around Victoria station. In the end the invaders were forced to by-pass that bastion of the de-fenders.

The invaders were well supplied with diagrams of the area and of the buildings, supposedly fur-nished by "Fifth Columnists."

The exercise started yesterday and the last shots were not fired until 10 a. m. today.

Before his Red Cross appointment, Lockett was manager of the placement bureau for the Greenleaf School of Business in Atlanta.

BOYS' CLUB VICTORY PROGRAM

The 300,000 members of the Boys' Clubs of America have joined up solidly in what is known as the Boys' Club Victory Program under the national chairman of the Atlanta Boys' Club, Edwin Hall, president of the Boys' Clubs of America.

The purpose of the Boys' Club Victory Program is to create a greater awareness of the impor-tance of maintaining physical, men-tal and character-building activi-ties for boys of all ages, not only to prepare them for the service and work of today, but also for the responsibilities of the recon-struction period that will follow the war. This program is pre-sented under four points of em-phasis:

1. To maintain basic programs and activities of Boys' Clubs.
2. To extend and add activities of Boys' Clubs to prepare boys for service to the nation.
3. To develop Boys' Club buildings and facilities for community projects related to the war.
4. To enlist men and boys of the Boys' Clubs in civilian defense activities.

For 50 years the Boys' Clubs of America have been seeking to aid in every possible way the large section of boys in our nation in families in the low income levels, boys who otherwise would not have a fair chance at life. The results of this half century of service to the underprivileged boys of the nation are most re-assuring. Many of these boys are now in the armed services, giving a good account of themselves. Many of the boys who are now being trained in the Boys' Club Victory Program will be admirably prepared for whatever call the government may have for them to-morrow.

Here in Atlanta we have a club for colored boys as well as white boys, and the people who are fa-miliar with the work of these clubs are highly pleased with the record of the organizations. I have been amazed to see the skill of these boys, developed under the direction of devoted teachers and leaders. I know of no greater opportunity for the investment of time and money on the part of those who are thinking in terms of service today and tomorrow than through the Boys' Clubs of America.

Jap Poll 'Won' By Throne Party

TOKYO (From Japanese Broad-casts), May 3.—(AP)—Complete re-turns from all but one of the 122 constituencies today showed that candidates of the League for Sup-port of the Throne scored a sweeping victory in the April 30 elections of a new house of rep-resentatives, Domei said today.

The government-recommended candidates won 378 of the 466 seats, the news agency said, and added that the "Fact Rightist ele-ments, as well as Renovationists, made an amazingly strong show-ing, contrasted with the decline of Leftist and Liberalist elements, is indicative of the nation's unquali-fied support of the government's foreign policies."

This was the first parliamen-tary election in Japan in five years.

Further Adventures By Militarists Seen

CHUNGKING, May 3.—(AP)—A Chinese foreign office spokesman today said the success achieved by the Japanese League for Support of the Throne in last week's par-liamentary elections foreshadowed a completely Fascist regime in Japan and further adventures by Japanese militarists.

Easy Way Often Relieves Distress OF ROUND WORMS

Today Is First Day to Register For Sugar Card

3,000,000 Persons in State To Be Listed To Obtain Commodity.

Georgians will swarm to hun-dreds of sugar registration offices today through Thursday to apply for the first rationing booklets to be issued to the general public during the present war.

Every man, woman and child in the state—approximately 3,000,000 persons—must be listed with the rationing boards to obtain one of the booklets, which may be used later for rationing other commodi-ties than sugar, Ivan Allen, state sugar rationing commissioner, said yesterday.

Residents of Atlanta and Fulton county will register at local ele-mentary schoolhouses, which will be open from 9 until 5 o'clock each of the four registration days, ac-cording to Fulton School Superin-tendent Jere Wells.

Commissioner Allen pointed out that any adult member of a fam-ily unit may register for the en-tire family, but a single war ra-tioning book will be issued to each member of the family group.

Holidays will be observed today in city and county schools when the bulk of the listing is expected to be completed.

Persons who live away from home, who eat at dormitories, boarding houses, or restaurants must obtain ration books just as those living in family groups, of-ficials warned.

Lopez Leading Velez In Colombian Ballot

BOGOTA, Colombia, May 3.—(AP)—Former President Alfonso Lopez was leading Dr. Carlos Arango Velez by a comfortable margin tonight on the basis of early returns from today's presi-dential election.

Lopez, who promised staunch support for the democracies in his campaign to succeed President Eduardo Santos as Colombia's 68th chief executive, received 33,119 votes to Arango's 12,815 in Bogota and his margin in other districts was equally wide.

Gallup Poll Reveals: People Satisfied With Draft

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 3.—Americans from coast to coast are handing bouquets to the nation's draft boards for their fairness and impartiality in managing the greatest draft of manpower in American history.

Composed of civilians who work without pay, the draft boards have handled the registration of Ameri-ca's entire adult male population up to 65 years of age, and the in-duction of several millions into the armed forces. For the effi-ciency of this work they are win-ning the praise and confidence of nearly 90 per cent of the Ameri-can population.

Few programs in the nation's history have ever received such an overwhelmingly favorable vote.

The views of the people on the work of the draft boards have been collected in a coast-to-coast poll in which this question was asked:

"Do you think the draft is being handled fairly in your com-munity?"

The vote is:
Think draft has been han-dled fairly 88%
Think it has not been han-dled fairly 12%

Approximately one person in every six (16 per cent) said he had no knowledge of the situa-tion.

The second issue for which sub-scription was invited will bear a May 5 date, carry 2 1/2 per cent interest, mature June 15, 1957, but may be redeemed beginning June 15, 1952.

The Pound of Sugar that You DON'T Get

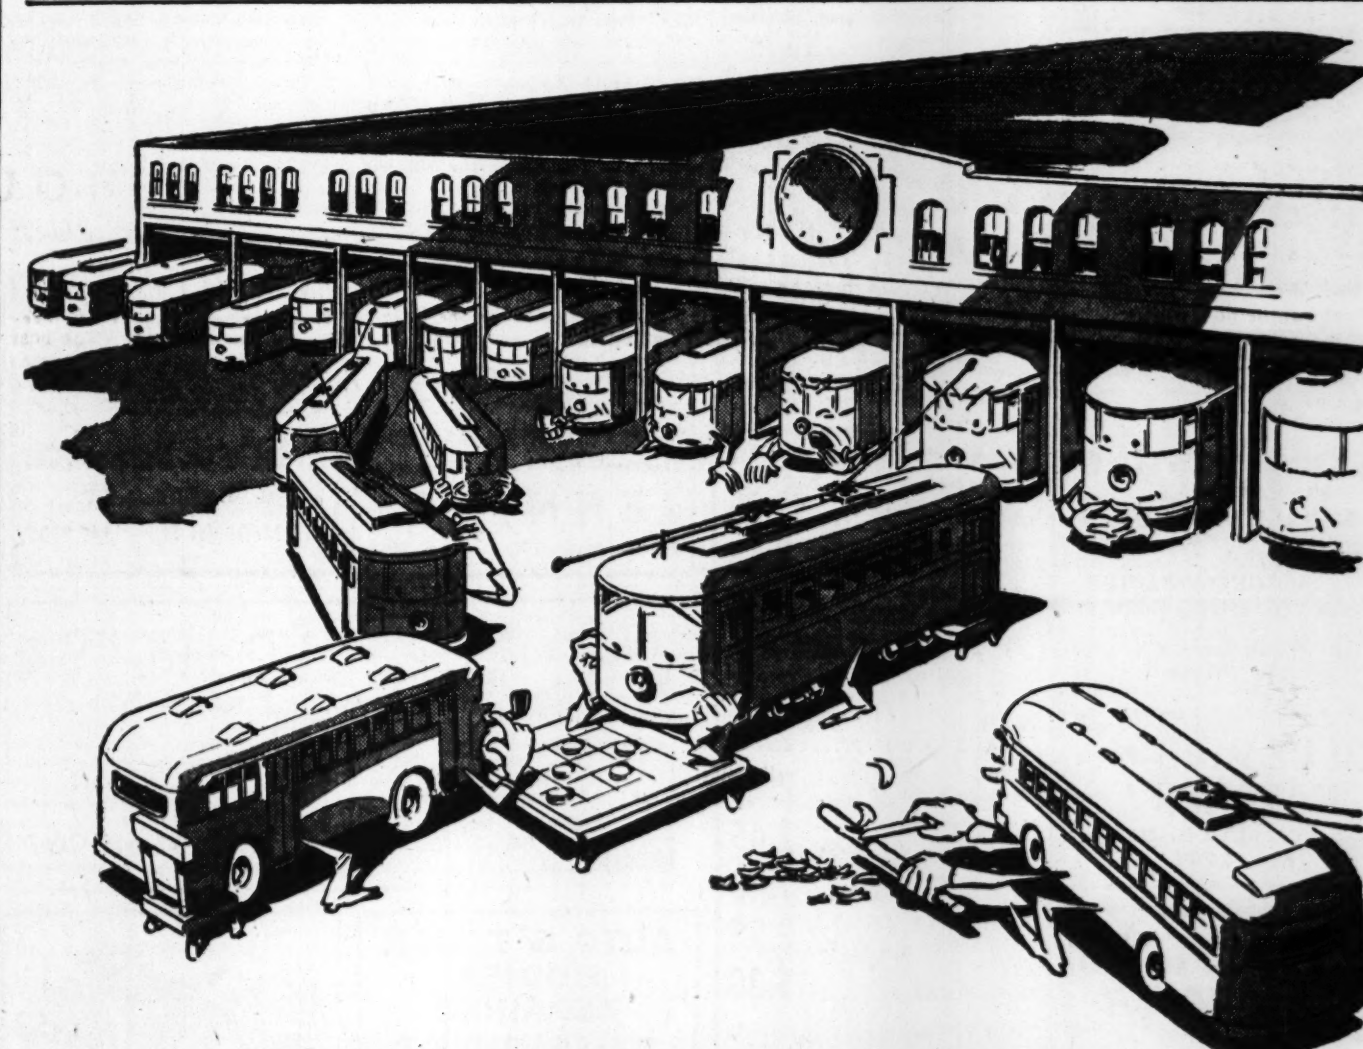

One pound of sugar will sup-ply an essential element in making enough gun powder to fire a machine gun 46 times!

When you realize that one pound of sugar will supply an essential element in making enough powder to fire a machine gun 46 times, you know why there was no sugar sold in the nation last week and why it will be rationed in every state this week. Powder is vital to keeping guns firing... keeping the guns of the United Nations firing is vital to final victory over the Axis... and that victory is the most vital thing on earth to millions of freedom-loving people in the world today.

That pound of sugar that isn't on your pantry shelf is backing up the Armed Forces by making possible 46 more shots in a machine gun's belt...to bring victory closer for all of us.

Gas too, is speeding War Production. The Gas Industry is sharing in rationing and feeling the pinch of priorities. But these things we do cheerfully, as a necessary part to conserve and use our resources for Victory.

ATLANTA GAS LIGHT COMPANY.

THESE WORKERS WANT LONGER HOURS

EVERY weekday morning 251 street cars, trackless trolleys and buses head back to the car barns and garage as soon as the morning rush is over. Many of them have made only one round trip, yet their work is done until the homeward-bound rush of Atlantans late in the afternoon.

These cars have a combined capacity to carry more than 12,000 people per trip without overcrowding.

For six hours these 251 vehicles stand idle. There is nothing for them to do because the number of riders falls off sharply between the "peaks." Approximately 200 other trolleys and buses are out on the lines taking care of the midday riding.

On the other hand, during the rush hours our 455 trolleys and buses have all they can do to meet the increasing demand for public transportation, and our facilities are taxed to the limit.

If Atlanta's rush-hour riding were spread over a little longer period of time, these idle vehicles could make at least one more useful trip each morn-ing and afternoon. The result would be a good deal less crowding in the peaks and the ability to carry many more riders.

Flowers From Mount's Nursery Are Ideal Gifts for Mother's Day

College Park Nursery Filled With Flowers

Roses or Potted Plants Make Suitable Gifts Next Sunday.

Next Sunday, May 10, should be an important day in your life. It is a day set apart to remember Mother.

Mother's Day is the occasion to honor the good woman who has loved and cared for and shielded you all these years. Of course, she deserves your honor and love and thoughtfulness every day of every year—every minute of every day—but next Sunday is specially named for an universal tribute to motherhood—for a remembrance of "your best friend." Living or dead, she should be lovingly remembered, appropriately honored.

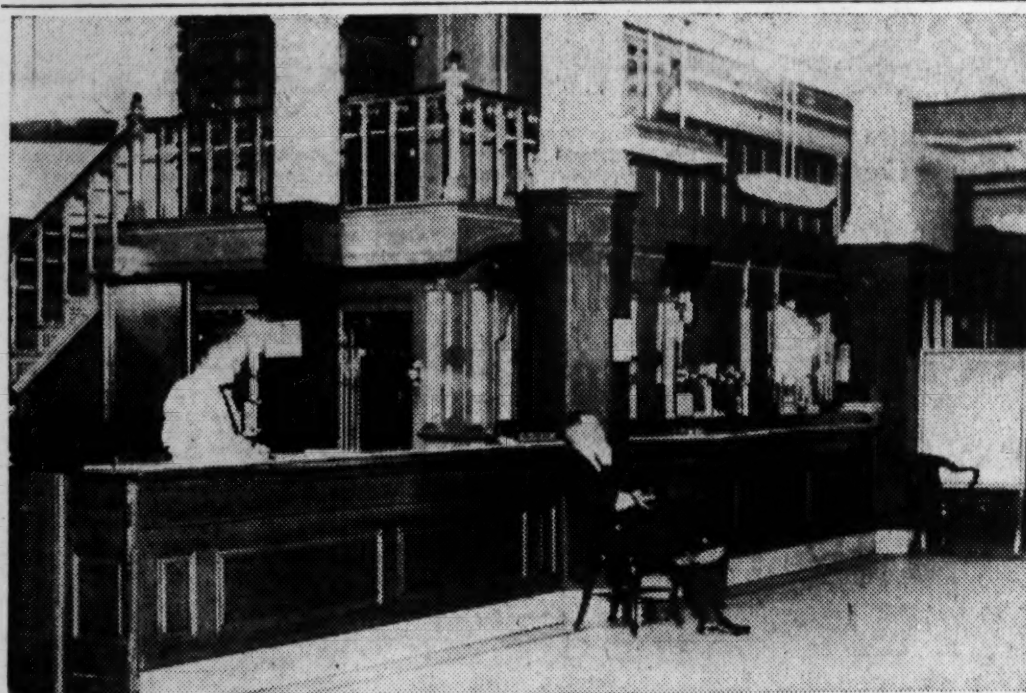

There is nothing more appealing to mother than flowers. Present her with an orchid, or a potted plant, or a bunch of beautiful roses—or even one pretty rose—to let her know you are thinking in loving terms of her. It will show her your love and affection for her.

Visit the Mount Nursery, located at 411 West Rugby street, in College Park, and select some roses or flowers of some kind for her. Just now Mount's Nursery is alive with handsome blooming plants, potted plants of all kinds, thousands of roses, and such beauties of nature as will make mother happy to receive a gift from you.

In fact, every kind of blooming plant found in a modern nursery is on display at the popular and well-known nursery in College Park. There are carnations, roses, yellow calla lilies, and a variety of plants and cut flowers so beautiful and elaborate that all flower desires can be filled.

Drive down this week and make your selection before next Sunday just to remember Mother. To visit the nursery, it is just a few blocks to the right from the main thoroughfare as one drives south through College Park.

The Mount Nursery offers a complete floral service for any and all occasions—for banquets,

ATLANTA TITLE AND TRUST COMPANY—Showing interior view of one of the few title companies in the entire south owning its office building, which is located at the corner of Pryor street and Auburn avenue. Established here in 1898 the company has a copy of every deed or mortgage ever made in Fulton county.

Atlanta Title & Trust Co. Has Copies of All Deeds

A board of directors made up of well-known local businessmen, including seven prominent attorneys, provide most complete facilities for the examination of titles to properties throughout this section, in the conduct of the business of the Atlanta Title & Trust Company, located at the corner of North Pryor street and Auburn avenue.

dinner, home decorations, funerals—any occasion in which flowers or floral designs may be required. The nursery covers approximately 25 acres, and is well utilized by Mr. Mount in the growing of shrubbery and plants and flowers of practically all descriptions.

Mr. Mount is a man of long experience in the growing and handling of flowers. For more than 40 years that has been his business. He was connected many years ago for long periods with some of the leading and outstanding florists in this section.

One of the most unusual features of the company's facilities is the fact that it has a copy of every deed or mortgage ever made in Fulton county. The concern maintains a large staff of women at the courthouse whose only duties are to keep these records up to date. Copies of the deeds, more than 1,000,000 of them are kept in a huge vault in the firm's offices. This unique file is the only one of its kind in Atlanta and provides the company with a complete record right at its fingertips.

The firm was founded in 1898 with H. M. Atkinson as its first president. Offices were established in the Empire building now known as the Citizens & Southern Bank building and later the concern occupied space first in the Candler building, then with the Trust Company of Georgia. In 1919 the firm purchased and moved into the building at 90 Alabama street, formerly occupied by the Atlanta National bank. Organized by Atlantans, for Atlantans, the company rapidly grew and expanded until even more space was required. In 1928 the Atlanta Title & Trust Company bought its present home, the office building at Pryor and Auburn avenue, where it occupies the first two floors, renting out the remainder of the building.

The Atlanta Title & Trust Company employs 52 Atlantans, including an expert legal staff of nine lawyers, to investigate and determine the insurability of titles. The firm has assets of more than $1,000,000, of which $485,000 is in securities, deposited in Georgia, under state supervision for the protection of its policyholders. The company is the only one doing business in Georgia with such a deposit.

Officers of the Atlanta Title & Trust Company are W. D. Thomson, president; Harry M. Paschal, executive vice president; J. H. Porter, vice president; C. B. Brewster, vice president-secretary; E. O. Kellum, treasurer; F. W. Head, assistant treasurer; T. E. Johnson, assistant secretary; E. T. Bradley, assistant title officer, and R. Frank Ellington Jr., assistant title officer.

Members of the board include Jack Adair, W. L. Blackett, Dr. E. P. Calhoun, Erle Cocke, Fred W. Cole, R. W. Courts Jr., James S. Floyd, L. L. Gellerstedt, E. Warren Moise, John E. Oliver, Harry M. Paschal, J. H. Porter, Alex W. Smith Jr., Marion Smith, W. D. Thomson, Philip Weltner, and George Winslow.

Sun Glasses That Fulfill Requirements

Kalish & Ainsworth Recommend One of Two Types They Handle.

"Beautiful eyes deserve beautiful eyewear," is the quaint, catchy and logical statement of men who know the truth and value embraced in that brief sentence.

It follows closely the policy of Kalish & Ainsworth, the popular and well known opticians at 380 Peachtree street. And more than that, there are other truths laid down by the officials of this firm. For instance, they say:

"Nothing less than the best is good enough for your eyes. Your eyes are priceless—worthy of sun glasses chosen by more than casual inspection. We urge you to make your selection from the types that not only are optically safe, but also give scientific protection against glare.

"In our stock, you will find two types of sun glasses that fulfill these requirements. The Ray-ban made by Bausch & Lomb and the Calobar made by the American Optical Company. These sun glasses are ophthalmically correct, are uniformly ground and polished to the same highest optical standards of precision as lenses for eyeglass prescriptions.

"The glasses we recommend give protection against ultra-violet and infra-red rays, while reducing glare to a surprising degree. "These lenses can be ground according to your oculist's prescription regardless of how complicated your eyes may be. We have made hundreds in prescription form; they are used for any outdoor sports, driving and in general during the summer months.

"Facial beauty begins at the eyes," says Mr. Ainsworth. "Eyes that need aid are more beautiful when becoming glasses are worn. Our experience and study in designing glasses to suit each individual has made us leaders in our field with thousands of happy customers. You, too, reader, can be made happy with your glasses. They do not have to make you look aged if properly designed to your features."

The optical profession is necessarily technical and is one which requires training and skill. Kalish & Ainsworth desire to protect not only the public but themselves from competition of unskilled men.

Oculists know that unless their prescriptions are carefully and correctly filled, their entire examination and prescription for glasses is valueless to the patient.

ATTRACTIVE—"Nothing less than the best is good enough for your eyes," says J. N. Kalish, head of the firm of Kalish & Ainsworth, well-known opticians at 380 Peachtree street.

F. D. R. Farm Prices Fought By Bankhead

Alabaman Says Senate Will Not Approve Cut in Formula.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, said today a poll of senate sentiment indicated that President Roosevelt would not win a requested revision of farm price formula under the price control act.

"It simply can't be done," Bankhead, influential member of the senate farm bloc, said in an interview.

"I doubt very much if anyone will make any serious attempt up here to alter them."

President Roosevelt in his message to congress last Monday outlining a wartime program for controlling the cost of living, asked stabilization of the "prices received by growers for the products of their lands."

Specifically, he requested revision of the price control act to permit lower ceilings on farm commodities—as low as 100 per cent of parity. The lowest possible ceiling now is 110 per cent of parity.

(Parity is a price giving a farm commodity the same purchasing power, in terms of nonfarm products, that it had in a base period, usually 1909-14.)

However, no congressional leader has as yet moved to revise the farm price provisions. Furthermore, Senator Brown, Democrat, Michigan, who voiced the administration views in the long battle over the price control act and its farm provisions, indicated he agreed with Bankhead and other farm bloc leaders that the senate would not approve such legislation now.

Plane Crashes Into Cobb County Tree: None Hurt, Just a Model!

A "plane" crashed early last night just across the Chattahoochee river in Cobb county, sending residents of that section to their telephones to frantically summon police and ambulances. The ambulances and police rushed to the scene ready to care for the expected victims, and for a while the "crash" had all the earmarks of a tragedy.

But the "plane" turned out to be a model craft that had overshoot a field in Cobb county where a model airplane club meets—and the excitement soon subsided.

Atlanta police first heard of the "crash" from a woman who said she had heard the plane fall. She asked that ambulances be sent immediately.

State patrol headquarters broadcast the news to Cobb county police who, along with several ambulances, rushed to the intersection of Log Cabin drive and Westland road, where the model plane was found in a tree.

It was an unusually large craft, with a wing spread of about 10 feet, and it was operated by a small gasoline engine.

Other residents in that section also heard the plane fall and aided police in locating it.

Sixty-four air raid wardens of the Techwood-Clark Howell Homes yesterday were given certificates by Brigadier General E. G. Peyton, commander of the city's civilian defenses, at exercises yesterday afternoon at the Clark Howell ball park.

Mrs. Ralph Odum presented a service flag with 48 stars, one for each man in the Techwood-Clark Howell homes who has enlisted, to Reese Waitis, president of the Tenants' Association.

Drills were executed by the state guard unit No. 162. A fire squad showed how to put out incendiary bombs and an exhibition was given by the first-aid detachment under the direction of Miss Betty Dendy. Music was furnished by Walter Sheets and his 20-piece orchestra.

Rommel remains as commander of the German-Italian forces in Libya, but he has brought in younger officers for a number of regiments the dispatch said.

Glamor Girl Lana Turner Will Star With Robert Taylor in 'Quo Vadis'

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, May 3.—(INS). "Quo Vadis," as powerful and as spectacular in its way as "Ben Hur," goes before the cameras in June. Arthur Hornblow Jr. will get this as his first M-G-M picture. Not a bad break, I'd say. Lana Turner, M-G-M's glamor girl, plays Lydia, beauty of Nero's time, with Robert Taylor as her co-starring partner.

A story of Roman society under Nero's regime, when the Christians were few in number, "Quo Vadis" by Henryk Sienkiewicz, has been printed in almost 30 languages. Many years ago it was made by the Cines Italian Film Company, and in its day was considered a work of pictorial art. Of course now, with the improved technique of motion pictures, M-G-M will spare neither costumes, art, technicolor nor money.

Far be it from me to get into any studio controversy, but 20th Century-Fox insists that Jack Benny is due there June 22 to begin work for William Perleberg in "The Meanest Man in the World." The George M. Cohan play, "How I Ask You—Can Jack be at 20th and still keep his date with Universal to star in "Wonder Boy" in June? 20th says that Walter Lang is set to direct and that Rochester has been signed for a part. Maybe Universal's costume is June, 1943. Anyhow, Jack is expected at 20th.

Eddie Cantor arrived in town, ready to talk movies to Warners. Eddie stepped out of the show, "Banjo Eyes," when threatened with a serious nervous breakdown. He'll recuperate in the California sun and get ready to make the movie version of "Banjo Eyes" with Mark Hellinger. The plan is to make it a rousing musical with plenty of good tunes and pretty girls.

Keye Luke, one of the best Chinese actors anywhere, and Mrs. Ethel Davis Blaney, a non-professional, were married a few days ago at Santa Fe, N. Mex. Luke says he will continue his career, playing Chinese saints and Jap villains on the screen. He first won fame as Charlie Chan's son, but the days when the later Warner Oland was so popular in that series.

Don't Bother Husband With Petty Jealousies

By Dixie George

Dear Dixie: I married six months ago and now I have been inducted into the Army. I have had to leave my home town and am in a camp about 300 miles from home. The town is rather small and the living quarters are not very satisfactory, therefore I have not brought my wife down. She seems to think I do not want her for she is forever writing me that she does not understand why I have changed so and do not want to be with her. I have tried to make her understand the situation but she has taken the wrong attitude. I know if she came to the camp she would understand the situation, but being in camp, I have no way of arranging things for her. And what is worrying me, too, is the fact that she tells me she knows I am running around with the girls. I am not. The only thing I do is go with the other soldiers to dances once and awhile. There is nothing much to do on off-hours so of course I go along wherever I can. Isn't that all right?

Yes, I think it all right for you to go to the dances, and I think your wife is very unfair to mistrust you and think that just because you are having a little diversion, you are being unfaithful to her. Since you are away from home and are lonesome I think she should be very glad to know that you have an opportunity to enjoy yourself.

As for living there near camp, she is again being very unreasonable. There are thousands of girls all over the nation who have had to stay home with mama and papa because hubby was at camp and there were no accommodations for her. It is just one of those wartime things and she will have to take it and like it. If you think it would make things any better why not ask her to come down and spend the weekend at the hotel near camp and see for herself that there are no living quarters. She seems to be a hard person to convince so you will have to use that old "actions speak louder than words" method and bring her down so she can see for herself since she will not believe you.

Try This New Make-Up Base For a Smoother Complexion

By Winifred Ware.

This is the time for harmony. And important at this time of year is harmony between lovely costumes of the new season and a lovely complexion. Today I am going to tell you about a product designed to give you that dewy-looking, flattering complexion that you desire. This is a complexion protector. Its function in your beauty ritual is powder base of a superior kind. It acts, too, as a lovely, smooth film over which your powder is applied, giving your makeup a soft translucency. This product is a liquid, creamy and delicately scented, and very light in consistency. It is applied by pouring a little in the palm of the hand and smoothing it over the face with the tips of the fingers. It should be allowed to dry naturally. Patting it dry with a tissue tends to disturb somewhat the appearance of fragile loveliness.

What days mean to you if you were born between: March 21st and April 19th (ARIES) Give your attention to routine matters today, for the day brings forth influences that are unfavorable for change. New ideas started now may be confused and uncertain. April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS) The things you least expect to happen today, for the day brings forth influences that are unfavorable for change. New ideas started now may be confused and uncertain. May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI) Before 9:15 a. m. will be best used for "marking time," so do not start new or important ventures. You may feel as if you were being restricted or limited, but after this hour you can make advantageous contacts. June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER) The things you least expect to happen today, for the day brings forth influences that are unfavorable for change. New ideas started now may be confused and uncertain. October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO) Previous to 5:30 p. m. disappointments are likely to come to you by expecting too much, or by a lack of preparation. After 5:30 p. m. is a favorable period for important matters that may be of interest at this time. Exercises To Fit You For Your Defense Job

By Ida Jean Kain

A girl can't go from bridge to anything but knitting without getting into condition and almost everywhere she turns in war work there is an exercise class waiting for her. She has to take a daily dozen in self-defense!

Volunteers in most units are expected to be able to toss sandbags about high overhead without hunching the shoulders, and bend water up and down the lines, and carry each other around in stretchers with the greatest of ease.

When you first start with one of these classes, the spirit is willing but the muscles are weak. Progressive exercise, given in addition to the other training, fixes you right up. Begin with easy ones and work into a more strenuous routine.

One of the easiest and best stretching exercises is to stand erect, arms high overhead without hunching the shoulders, and bend acutely sideward. Bend in one direction, straighten up, and bend in the other. Do this without letting the hips jut out to the other side. The bend at the waist increases the stretch.

Your hip and thigh muscles are among the most neglected—consequently the flabbiest. Get after both sets with this leg-circling trick: Place a low table or waste basket in front of you and kick over it, circling the leg up, over and around. Keep the knee straight. This strengthens the inner and outer thigh muscles and helps to tone hip muscles.

Send large stamped return envelope to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for the leaflet, "Hips, Hips—Away!" and vary your routine to slim down faster.

"SOMETHING old, something new, something borrowed and something blue" featured Anne Brantley's beautiful bride robes when she married Captain Arthur Snellgrove Jr., last Saturday evening at the First Presbyterian church.

The diamond and amethyst cross which Anne wore, belongs to her grandmother, Mrs. Edward Stow, and served as the "something old" for the wedding. By her grandmother, Mrs. Stow, at her wedding, Anne's exquisite marquisette gown and tulle veil were "new" to her. Mrs. Gordon Curtiss loaned the pretty bride a real lace handkerchief for the wedding. Mrs. E. P. Brantley bought her daughter a pair of garters for the touch of blue. Things You Ought To Know About Your Red Cross

A statement as to citizenship qualifications for Red Cross workers has been issued by Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross. This statement is here presented, as it is of general interest.

"During the present emergency a number of questions have arisen concerning the participation of non-citizens in American Red Cross work. Effective immediately, the following policy is announced for the guidance of all concerned in this country:

"(1) Activities Directly Related to Services to the Armed Forces. "All American Red Cross workers, whether volunteer or paid, participating in activities directly related to services to the armed forces must be full citizens of the United States. These activities are: All members of the national organization staff, volunteer or paid; All members of the chapter staffs, volunteer or paid; All members of the following services: Motor Corps, Hospital and Recreation Corps, Canteen Corps, Home Service Corps.

Those members of any other service who may be assigned to duty directly related to the armed forces, such as selected members of the State Assistance Corps or Nurse's Aide Corps.

"(2) All Other Activities. "In all other Red Cross activities, citizens of the United States and all other volunteers are eligible except the citizens of the following countries which the State Department at present lists as being at war with the United States: Germany, Japan, Italy, Bulgaria, Hungary, Roumania and Thailand.

"Many citizens of the above named countries, who have emigrated to the United States, are no doubt friendly to our country in the present conflict; nevertheless, the Red Cross cannot assume the responsibility of selection. "The Red Cross, under International Treaty and Congressional Charter, occupies a unique position as an auxiliary to the armed forces in time of war. Therefore, chapters should exercise special care at this time in the selection of all workers, whether citizens or non-citizens, taking into account the need, their qualifications, and reliability.

Mrs. William McKee Dunn, of Hot Springs, Va., has recently been appointed assistant director of the Hospital and Recreation Corps of the American Red Cross.

Stauning, Danish Leader, Dead

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 3.—(AP)—Thovald Stauning, 68, prime minister of Denmark, died in a Copenhagen hospital today.

Ill for some time, he fell Thursday night and remained in that condition until his death. King Christian X appointed Finance Minister Orla Buhl to succeed Stauning. Buhl will retain his financial post also.

Thovald Stauning was a Danish politician who rose from leadership of a cigar workers' union to serve as prime minister of the government of King Christian X for almost two decades, including two years under German occupation.

An injury to his hip recently recalled that he fractured his left leg in an accident aboard the yacht Nordsee September 3, 1937.

In both the World War and current struggle he found things to deplore in United States actions. Stauning was minister of state in the World War days of neutral Denmark. He stirred up protests from both the U. S. State Department and Conservatives at home by declaring in June, 1917, that the American effort was a war of capitalists.

Movement of American armed forces to join the British occupation of Iceland last summer he described as "regrettable from the Danish and European viewpoint."
